

Hello NFDW Members!

As we gear up for Thanksgiving, it's time to give credit where credit's due. I've seen some hardworking Democratic women this year, and I am not about to let that go unnoticed.

Let's talk real talk. In the face of challenges that would make some folks run for the hills, Democratic women have stood tall. We've been out there from the mountains to the coast, boots on the ground, fighting for what's right. And I'm incredibly proud of it.

This isn't just about turkey and pumpkin pie. It's about recognizing the sweat and tears poured into this democracy. We've been doing the work, from pushing for policies that matter to showing up at every corner of this great nation.

Now, as we eyeball 2024, I want all of you to know that the groundwork we laid is not for show. It's the real deal. Come this time next November, we're going to see the fruits of our labor. The fight for justice, equality, and the American dream will never be over, but with the grit and guts of Democratic women, we're making particularly sure our voices are heard.

I want to take a moment to appreciate each and every one of you. From the seasoned warriors who've been in this game forever to the fresh faces bringing new energy, you all are the backbone of this movement. We're building something powerful, and I'm honored to be in the trenches with you.

So, as we gather with family and friends, remember what we're thankful for. Thankful for the battles we've fought and the ones we're gearing up to face. I am thankful for the Democratic women who don't back down, no matter the odds.

Here's to you, the unsung heroes of democracy.
Enjoy your Thanksgiving because you've earned it.

In solidarity,

Barbara Faison
